FACULTY

GRADUATES 1981

Electronic communication is certainly one of today's modern miracles. We can see events from anywhere in the world and even things which are happening millions of miles away such as on Saturn. We share things as fast as they occur and can talk by phone through space satellites to any place on the earth. The most remote spot you can imagine is only a second away because of electronics.

It's a paradox as to how we can be so close in communication and yet so far from really communicating. The world has concentrated on making things easier, but not better.

As you go now into the next phase of your life, I would ask that you join the effort to bring people closer together without an electrical hook-up.

Skip one TV show a week and visit a friend who needs you. Spend some time with your family — just sitting around and talking. Get active in a social group. Go to community activities.

The monster of electronic communication is going to make us all victims of isolation. Be a personal person.

The best to you all

SAYING GOOD-BYE

The time has come, to say good-bye.
And tomorrow, when we look back—
We will remember the happiness,
And the fun we shared.

But feel no sorrow, for when time passes on, we will then realize—
We've made new friends,
And shared more good times.

Still in our hearts, the thoughts
will always remain—
For we're not losing friends,
We're gaining precious memories.

Congratulations Class of "81",
Linda Molinaro
